

Life-Saving Health Help Using Young Living Essential Oils For Cancer:
(contains protocols that build health & vitality...and for prevention!)

Note: we do not prescribe or diagnose under any circumstances. This information is strictly for educational purposes. We ALWAYS advise folks to consult their medical professional for help, support & assistance.

The Question:

Hey Friends,

Are there any testimonies of oil help to people post medical treatment? I know Equador clinic doesn't treat people who have already undergone chemo and radiation but I know a young mother who has just been given news that her colon cancer has returned for a third time. Her abdomen looks like a Coraline doll by now with so many scars up and down and she has fought aggressively and valiantly. She has three children and an amazing husband. I get tongue tied just thinking "Hey, wanna try Frankincense and Orange oil this time?" because I'm not exactly able to administer IVs or be able to speak with wisdom and authority on these subjects enough to exact real change. They trust in God and Johns Hopkins and she is standing strong... yet now this.

Even if she was open, and I bet she is this go around - who could I direct her to that would have real answers? Is there anything at this point that would help? Orange oil in high quantities this far along??

Best,
Jen

The Answer (that heals):

Hi Jen,

Most of us are not doctors. All we can do is offer information, and empower people to make decisions based on what we've learned and observed. We are in the process of pioneering a modality that holds the promise of extraordinary health and healing. We are morally obligated to share this information courageously with as many people as possible, knowing that we can help people, now and in future generations, live longer, healthier, and happier lives. It's a gift that's been given to us. There is no greater purpose in life than being of service to others.

So put on your Valor, Magnify Your Purpose, Joy, Believe, and Transformation, and sit down with her to explain why we are so passionate about these oils.

If you're unsure of what to say, use the scripted outline in Heart Centered Sharing 2012 (pages 35-47). Free download - newly revised - www.tinyurl.com/HCS-2012

You can print out a copy of the Limonene studies in the 2002 YL Clinic newsletter and share it with her, available free at www.tinyurl.com/limonene2

We know that to replicate the amount of limonene used in those studies where regression was seen, one would have to ingest 10ml of orange oil a day.

We also have another protocol that I would add if this happened to me. We have a Breast Cancer Prevention protocol, which can actually be used anywhere on the body - in this case, I might use it all over the abdomen as often and liberally as possible:

Rub 8-10 drops of frankincense (or Sacred frankincense) all over the breasts

Layer 8-10 drops of one of the following oils over the frankincense rotating among the 3 oils, day by day:

Sandalwood
Myrtle
Tsuga

For prevention, we may want to do this once a day for a week to a month. We may want to use this protocol periodically, for safety and protection.

If we have concerns about our health, we can use this protocol more than once a day for awhile.

After sharing with her, please be brave and ask her if she'd like to get started. If she would, go online with her and help her set up an account and order. Again, this is described in the Heart Centered Sharing script on page 42-47 starting with section 16 at the bottom of the page. Don't judge her - allow her to decide what she can and cannot afford to order, and help her get it set up. Look at expedited shipping, as time may be of the essence.

If you can afford it, give her a sample bottle filled with frankincense and another filled with orange oil, so that she can get started, if she wants to. Ask her, “If I leave these oils with you, will you use them?” Look for an honest answer. No need to leave them if she’s going to throw them away.

Tell her that according to French doctors, there is no contra-indication in using oils in addition to the medications prescribed by her doctors, although it’s always a good idea to check with them, as well.

We’ve been given an opportunity, during our lifetime, to make a difference in our world. We have to put our fears of inadequacy aside and step up. Then we step back, and allow people to decide, for themselves, their own journey. We do this without expectation and we do it with love and gratitude in our hearts for the opportunity to, once again, to be of service to others.

Please let us know what happens.

Thanks,

Vicki